HOLLY SPRINGS CHURCH

It was on November 7, 1849 that Mr. John C. Watkins executed a deed for five acres of land to the following trustees and their successors: Sterling C. Davis, Joshua Wilson, Luke T. Watkins, Josiah Marlow, and Matthew G. Watkins for a place of Divine Worship known as Holly Springs Meeting House of the Methodist Church, South (and for a schoolhouse for the education of the children of the neighborhood if they, the said Trustees, think proper)

The first church building was a log cabin near a spring not far from the present church building. There were holly trees around the spring so the church was named Holly Springs.

Forest News June 22, 1878

The Sunday School at Holly Spring is still flourishing. We hope that at least some good will be accomplished.

Rev. Thomas Prichett "held forth" at Holly Spring on last Sabbath. He always has a good congregation; being recognized as a good man, people love to hear him preach.

Forest News November 30, 1878

Brother Cary delivered some fine sermons at Holly Spring on the second Saturday and Sunday of this inst. The people seemed well pleased with his visit, so we would add, come again, Bro Cary. Brother Frank Rutherford will preach again at Holly Spring the second Saturday and Sunday in December. We truly hope that the churches will remain next year as they are, and that we may be honored with the services of the same man.

JACKSON HERALD

June 22, 1878 - Messrs. Deadwyler & Hartly are going to move their steam saw-mill into our immediate section, in a few days. It will be located on the lands of W. R. Hancock, one mile above Holly Springs. This is a good move in the right direction.

– There is intense excitement prevailing in this section over a powerful rich gold mine that has been discovered. A man by the name of Smith, living near Holly Spring, who has had some experience in mining, made the discovery. The land on which this big bonanza was found belongs to Mr. Mark Cheatham, of Athens, so we are informed. So, after Smith made known the discovery to some of our most enterprising men, two of them started to Athens to purchase the Cheatham land. A third party, wishing to own a gold mine, made a dash for the residence of the aforesaid Mr. Cheatham by way of the Northeastern Railroad. He told his folks that that gold mine he intended to have; that if his mule have out, he would board the train, for his intentions were to get to Athens first, for the last account we had of the aforesaid gent was near Harmony Grove, when his mule was beginning to “fag” and about that time the Northeastern came puffing along, when he lit astride the engine, and the last we heard of him he was speeding ahead with all vengeance. The price of land has readily advanced in this section. Mr. Luke Watkins refused twenty dollars per acre for land adjoining the “gold.”
