Bugg. Jason Bugg, 77, 747 Fairview Court, died Monday, April 24, 2000, of an apparent heart attack. He was pronounced dead by Mercer County Coroner Sonny Ransdell when he was found in his vehicle in the back of Beaumont Plaza. According to a Harrodsburg Police report, Bugg was operating the vehicle when he apparently suffered a fatal heart attack. The car traveled uncontrolled heading north in the back of the parking lot and struck a concrete pole. Born November 5, 1922 in Washington County, Bugg was the son of the late Thomas Allen and Zanie Lowe Bugg. He was a former owner of the Redwood Restaurant. He attended the University of Cincinnati as an engineering major. He was a U.S. Army Air Corps veteran of World War II, where he received an EAME ribbon with three bronze stars and an Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters. At age 21, while a staff sergeant in the U.S. Army Air Corps, Bugg was shot down in May of 1944 and his family was notified he was missing in action, and a few weeks later, told he had been killed. He was awarded the Purple Heart posthumously and his parents received a personal commendation from President Franklin D. Roosevelt praising his death in service to his country. About six months later, his family learned he was alive and being held a prisoner of war by the Germans, first in Germany and then in Poland. In February 1945, he and nearly 10,000 fellow POWs were forced to march 56 days over 700 miles out of Poland into Germany to avoid the advancing Russian front. Bugg endured the march and 18 months of being a prisoner of war. He returned home to his family in Harrodsburg and for nearly 40 years, he did not speak of his war experiences. Finally, in 1983, he began to reminisce with other veterans about his experiences and his story was shared in a book about the 409th Bomb Group of World War II. He also learned that the Army still had him listed as killed in action. The mistake was corrected. After returning to Harrodsburg, Bugg had a career as a successful business man and was involved in many areas of local civic life. He was a partner in the White Cottage Restaurant and owned the Redwood Restaurant. He was on the founding board of directors of the Fort Harrod Drama, served three terms as president of the Mercer Chamber of Commerce, was president of the Harrodsburg Rotary Club and treasurer of the Jaycees. He is survived by four sons, Allen and Edward Lynn Bugg, both of Lexington; David Thomas Bugg, Hopkinsville; Everett Lawrence Bugg, Richmond; one daughter, Brenda Marie Elkins, New Albany, IN; three brothers, Marvin Bugg, Henderson; Sterling Bugg, Oxnard, CA, and Warren Bugg, Danville, and seven grandchildren. Graveside services were held Wednesday, April 26, at the Camp Nelson National Cemetery with Dr. Robert DeFoor officiating. Pallbearers were Kim Knight, Barry Elkins, Byron Bugg, Brice Long, Mike Calhoun and Wayne Bugg. Expressions of sympathy may take the form of donations to the Disabled American Veterans, Harrodsburg, KY 40330. Alexander and Royalty Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

LANCASTER. Clay Lancaster, 83, of 1533 Oregon Road, Salvisa, died Monday, December 25, 2000 at the James B. Haggan Memorial Hospital. Born March 30, 1917 in Lexington, he was the son of the late John William and Della Clay Lancaster. He was a noted writer, publisher, painter and founder of the Warwick Foundation at 1533 Oregon Road, Salvisa. Survivors include: two nephews, John W. Lancaster IV, Lexington, Robert Lewis Lancaster, Independence; a niece, Betty Clay Lancaster Waddell, Mt. Washington. There will be no visitation nor services. The remains will be cremated and the ashes scattered at Warwick. Memorials are suggested to the Warwick Foundation, c/o Gay Reading, 417 W. Second St., Lexington, KY 40507. McClellan Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

LANCASTER. Clay Lancaster, Noted Architect Dies. "He had a view of the world that was unique," is the way Frances Keightley Moseley describes Clay Lancaster, 83, of 1533 Oregon Road. A noted architect, artist, design lecturer, writer and publisher, Lancaster died Christmas night Monday at the James B. Haggan Memorial Hospital. He has been considered the leading authority on Kentucky architecture for nearly 60 years. A native of Lexington, he was living on a small island when he found his way to Mercer County in 1978. Moseley said Lancaster was looking for a quieter and more peaceful home when he found the Moses Jones house on the Kentucky River. The house was built in 1809-11. Moseley recalls what Lancaster said about his first night in the home: "I slept on a blanket on the floor but felt completely at home -- I knew this was where I was supposed to be.". "He meant so much to my life and taught me about the history of architectural styles," Moseley said, noting that she took a course taught by Lancaster at Transylvania University and worked with him closely on a Mercer County Historical Society study of historic homes in Mercer County. "He was most famous as an architectural historian and was a scholar who taught at the Metropolitan Museum of Art on far eastern art and architecture," Moseley said. A devout Buddhist, Lancaster was a graduate of the University of Kentucky and former Ware librarian of the Avery Library at Columbia University where he studied Asian cultures. He taught at Columbia, Vassar College, New York City's Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York University, Transylvania University, the University of Kentucky and University of Louisville. He received two Guggenheim Fellowships, in 1953 and 1964, for research for the book, The Japanese Influence In America and for research on Kentucky architecture, the basis of numerous publications. He was the curator of New York City's Prospect Park and the recipient of many other honors and awards. He is listed in the UK Hall of Distinguished Alumni and the university's School of Architecture has an endowed chair in his honor. The Bluegrass Trust's Heritage Education Award is also named for Lancaster. He was the author of several volumes on architecture including The Architecture of Antebellum Kentucky and Ante Bellum Houses of the Bluegrass and authored and illustrated six children's books as well as numerous articles. His latest publications, a book on the architecture and a social study of the buildings at Shaketown at Pleasant Hill, entitled Pleasant Hill – Shaker Canaan In Kentucky, and an album of original architectural designs in 17th to 20th century styles, will be released soon.

Jim Thomas, president and CEO at Shakertown, said Lancaster's work on the Shaker village was the last project he wanted to accomplish. He said the book is expected to be released by Warwick Publications in early spring and that he had the honor of writing the prospectus for the volume. A longtime friend of Lancaster's, Thomas said Lancaster was a superb architectural historian. "He was certainly one of the most prolific writers and commentators of architecture in America and was a delightful person to be around. He was the king of the puns and always had something funny and offbeat to say in conversation. He was also a marvelous creator of whimsical books and just a great scholar," Thomas added. It was Lancaster's wish, at his death, to be cremated and to have his ashes sprinkled near his Warwick estate on the Kentucky River in Mercer County. He did not want a funeral service. Donations are suggested to the Warwick Foundation, care of Gay Reading, 417 W. Second St., Lexington, KY 40507. Warwick Foundation manages Lancaster’s collection of scholarship, artwork, antiques and landholdings. Known as a kind, gentle man with a wry sense of humor, Lancaster was fond of animals living near his home and he was a vegetarian. His health had declined in recent years and he was hospitalized Dec. 4 at the James B. Haggin Memorial Hospital. He went home for a few hours Dec. 14, but returned to the hospital where he died Christmas night.

MURPHY. Long-time preservationist Mrs. Mary Genevieve Murphy, 84, of 2575 Bowmans Mill Rd., Lexington, wife of Joe H. Murphy Jr., died Saturday, July 22, 2000 at St. Joseph Hospital. Well-known in Harrodsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Murphy are the former owners of Mercer Motors in Harrodsburg. "If there ever was a 'southern' lady," it was Mrs. Murphy," said long-time friend Bill Randolph of Harrodsburg. "Lexington and this community will miss the lady and her many contributions, especially her expertise in historic preservation." Mrs. Murphy lived most of her life at Helm Place, which was purchased by her family in 1946. Helm Place, which is on the National Historic Register, was the home of Mary Todd Lincoln's half sister, Emilie Todd, and one of the premiere houses in Lexington. In 1995, Mrs. Murphy authored a book about Helm Place entitled "The Story of Helm Place and the People Who Called It Home." She loved the history surrounding her home and its historic significance and she loved sharing it with guests. Helm Place has often been used by the Lexington Philharmonic, Junior League and other non-profit organizations for fund raisers. "She was a very gracious hostess, indeed," said Kentucky historian Thomas D. Clark in an article. "She was interested in what went on in this community. She was very interested in Lexington having a good museum." Mrs. Murphy had numerous items that had belonged to such historic figures as Abraham Lincoln that had been part of an extensive collection gathered by her father. One of Mrs. Murphy's passions was historic preservation. She poured that passion into keeping the historic Bluegrass horse farms from being encroached upon by urban development, said Randolph. Born in Lexington, Mrs. Murphy was the daughter of the late W.H. and Genevieve Johnson Townsend. Mr. Townsend, who was an authority on Abraham Lincoln, was the founder of the Kentucky Civil War Roundtable and his daughter was the only woman to be given an honorary membership in the roundtable. She attended the University of Kentucky and earned a BA degree from Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, NY. She was a member of South Elkhorn Christian Church. She was a board member of the Kentucky Mansion Society (the Mary Todd Lincoln Home) a board member of the Historic McCormack Meeting House, a member of the Sundial Garden Club, board member of the University of Kentucky Library and she championed horse farm preservation. In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Joe H. Murphy III of Agoura, CA and Martin Wallace "Wally" Murphy of Harrodsburg and Phoenix, AZ; a daughter Elodie Lawson of Pennsylvania; seven grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. Funeral services for Mrs. Murphy were held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 26 at W.R. Milward Mortuary-Broadway. Dr. Gerald Shepherd and Dr. Harold W. Dorsey officiated and burial was in Lexington Cemetery. Pallbearers were Louis Bosworth, Dr. Dan Primm, Dr. Thomas Clark, John Doug Cagg, Arlyn Wagoner, Michael McGehee. Honorary pallbearers were members of the Kentucky Civil War Roundtable. Expressions of sympathy can take the form of contributions to the Foundation for Historic McCormack Meeting House Inc., PO 2, Stanford, KY 40484-0088 or to the South Elkhorn Christian Church.

ROSS. Man Drowns In Herrington Lake Near Kennedy Bridge. A Harrodsburg man, Brian Patrick Ross, 18, of 311 Cedar Street, drowned in Herrington Lake near Kennedy Bridge last Thursday night. Steve Oglesby, director of the Mercer County Emergency management Agency, said Ross was swimming with friends off the cliffs adjacent to the bridge. He and his friends were reportedly swimming back and forth from the cliffs to the Pandora Marina dock. Oglesby said Ross was swimming back to the cliffs and "got into trouble and no one was close to him." Efforts by his friends to reach him were unsuccessful, he said. Oglesby said none of the swimmers were using any type of flotation device. That water is too dangerous for swimming without a flotation device," Oglesby said, noting that the water is too deep in that are of the lake to be swimming without some protection. Rescue workers using boats, dogs and underwater cameras conducted dragging operations and Ross's body was recovered at 9:55 a.m. Friday near the cliff area where he went under the water. Oglesby said the Burgin Rescue Squad was the initial responder to the scene and was assisted Thursday night and Friday morning by rescue officials from Camp Dick, Danville and Mercer Central. Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources officials and dog handlers including Cletus Smith were also at the scene. Oglesby expressed appreciation to all those who assisted with dragging operations at the lake and said the workers were appreciative to Gateway of Harrodsburg and Papa John's Pizza for providing food and drink to rescue workers during the search. Ross was the son of Martin Wayne Ross and Kelli Michelle Chapman Ammons. Funeral services for Ross were held Monday at the Ransdell Funeral chapel.
