

GUARDIAN ACCOUNTS OF DAVIE COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA

1846 THROUGH 1859

From the North Carolina State Archives (CR 033.510.10)

Transcribed by Grace Wight and Marcia Masser
Yates Mill Chapter DAR

Guardians were appointed to be responsible for orphans, children of living parents when the children were receiving money from estates – or other sources – such as grandparents. The guardian was in most cases a relative or neighbor. A parent could be appointed as guardian of their own children if they were inheriting from the mother's estate or from another relative.

Orphans were mostly fatherless; sometimes both parents were deceased. A child fourteen years and older could select their own guardian. This still holds true today. Anyone under twenty-one years of age was called "infants".

Guardians were required to submit a yearly report to show expenditures for the child's schooling, medical, clothing, room and board, etc. If the guardian was not doing his job, he could be replaced. In most cases the guardian either moved, died, or was not capable of doing his job.

More can be found on guardian affairs in the N.C. State Archives. There are guardian records with much more detail than presented here. These records are Guardian Records 1838-1918 - 9 Fibredex boxes. These are arranged by family surname. Any interest by anyone who might have a record prior to the formation of Davie County in 1836 should consult the Rowan County records.
