

YADKIN RIVER PHOTOS

OCTOBER 2007, Yadkin County Historical Society Trip and Program to Shallowford, crossing on the granite shelf, looking from the Yadkin side towards the Forsyth side. This was during a drought and the water was about as low as it ever was. The lower photo where they are gathered around a stick shows them finding the millstone that was a marker as well as a connection support for a rope to keep people from being swept downstream in the old days. (Photos by Cathy Boyer)

