

"If, by chance, you are in Grand-Pré at midnight on Christmas Eve, be sure to look carefully at the little church. If you see lights and if you hear the sounds of fiddles, guitars, and mandolins, you will know that our ancestors have come to celebrate Christmas-as they have done ever since Rose-Marie and Constant hooked the last strands of wool into the rug from Grand-Pré."

*The Magic Rug of Grand-Pré
Réjean Aucoin & Jean-Claude Tremblay*

