“Picturing Family History: Identifying, Preserving, and Sharing Old Photos”

By Ann McKee

Family photos can be a goldmine, if you know who everyone is. Ann will explain how when she inherited 131 old photos, 106 of them were not labeled and had no identifying information. That was in 2013. Today, only 20 photos remain unidentified. Ann will provide tips and strategies to help you use all your photos to discover family history.

DAY: Tuesday, August 29, 2017

Ann McKee began researching her family in 2013 after she retired from a career as a school librarian. Ann was always interested in family history, but in the beginning her main goal was to try and identify the people in 131 photographs from her mother’s family. The photographs dated from the Civil War up to the first half of the 20th century. Her family history research allowed Ann to identify over 110 of the old photographs and to discover both an early Texas ancestor and a Revolutionary War ancestor. Ann is a member of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution and the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.
