THANK YOU, Dorothy Adams for establishing the 1850-1907 Polk County birth records database, printing sheet after sheet, placing each sheet in a archival sleeve, filing all in a binder and placing the completed project in the Registrar of Deeds office and at the PCHS Museum.

Thank you John Jenkins, for teaching the class at the September meeting, about moving our photos (old and new) from negatives, from digital, and from old photo albums into our family history documents.

Great Migration Project
The goal of the Great Migration Project was to compile biographical and genealogical information on immigrants to New England who arrived between 1620 and 1643. The first series of this project, called The Great Migration Begins, covers immigrants who arrived between 1620 and 1633. The second series of volumes covers immigrants whose surname starts with A through L and arrived between 1634 and 1635. Three more volumes will complete this series with surnames starting with M through Z. These volumes will be published in complete 2007. Additional volumes will eventually complete the project through 1643. These volumes are currently not online, but in printed format at larger libraries. The Great Migration Project Website is at <www.GreatMigration.org>

Family history researchers develop good habits to become efficient and effective in your research. An effective researcher is organized. Create and use timelines, Reiterated throughout the NGS Conference, Chicago/2006 was the admonishment to always verify data received from others—whether in book form, oral histories or online! People make honest mistakes, & make honest incorrect assumptions.

Inventory of Family Names in all the Family Histories

A master database will be compiled of all the family names in all the family histories on the shelves at the PCHS museum in Balsam Lake. The purpose is to share, not only the collection with the visiting public researching family history, but also to shorten that search for the elusive name needed to move back one more generation.

We all know how much we appreciate an index allowing our search to cover greater ground more efficiently. A family history book, without an index, is rarely taken off the shelf. A master hardcopy database will be wonderful!

Guide to Naturalization Records

State by state, county by county, city by city, this GUIDE identifies all repositories of naturalization records, systematically indicating the types of records held, their dates of overage, and the location of original and microfilm records. The GUIDE also pinpoints the whereabouts of federal court records in all National Archives facilities, and it identifies every single piece of information on naturalization that is available on microfilm through the National Archives of the Family History Library System, including the call numbers used by each institution. <http://www.genealogical.com/index.php?main_page=product_info&item_number=5177>

EVIDENCE!
Citation & Analysis for the Family Historian
Elizabeth Shown Mills

Direct evidence is that which addresses a particular matter and points to a conclusion without the addition of other supporting evidence.

Indirect evidence is circumstantial information that requires us to supply a thought process (and perhaps other evidence) to convert its details into a reliable conclusion.

According to genealogy’s now-classic discussion by Noel C. Stevenson, J.D. FASG, “Evidence is none the less effective because it is circumstantial, if it be consistent, connected and conclusive,” To use indirect or circumstantial evidence effectively, though, genealogists must hone their analytic skills and expand their understanding of the strengths and limits of various source materials.

Over the life of our Group, a yearly program addressed to the genealogy beginner is a project that PCGS has decided is important.

This year is no exception. Barb Oestreich has consented to teach a beginners class at our October meeting. Barb attends a yearly class at Institute in Salt Lake City and will come prepared.

I have been to several “beginning” classes and I always learn some new research or writing tip that will improve, not only the finished project, but will also make the “hunt” that much easier and more successful.
